Speech from President Johnson.
Whilst Col. Stokes was making a speech in this city Thursday, and assuming to give the President's views, the latter was making a speech in Washington before the National Monument Association. A brief telegraphic report will be found in our columns it will be noted that he is not backward in denouncing the ultra leaders both in Congress and out of it, and does not coincide with Col. Stokes. The President appreciates the great crisis in which the country is placed, and meets all his responsibilities as becomes an American President. He is not disposed to truckle to Congressional dictation, but means to do his whole duty, and trust to the people. They will sustain him.

The Difference.

Tennessee ultras have not one word of commendation for President Johnson's Veto. In regard to that submissiveset they are as silent as the grave, perhaps because it is to them the grave of cherished hopes. But they have words, honored phrases, for Congress, and would have every one follow their example. "Don't say anything against Congress. That will make a breach," they say. But the President may be abused as an ingrate and traitor,—in that there is no breach. Will any of our ultras rebuke the following language of the Washington Chronicle, on the effect of the veto?

It may be even safely predicted that in a very short time those to whom courage and consistency are the badge of wisdom, and Lincoln, and identified with some of the most glorious events of the war for freedom, will be as silent as the grave, and that the traitors of the South, and the sympathizers with the North—hated and reviled by one and envied by the other, will be the dividers of the nameless calamities, turning upon the patriotic representations of the legal nation, and holding them accountable for breaking up the Union, and for the destruction of this species a military and sufficient compensation. It is a new teaching. It proves that the great work committed to the care of the South has been discharged by them alone. It lays upon Congress still more sin and more impudent accusations. And it is a new teaching that ever countenanced that when the traitors were exonerated on the field of battle their cause was safe. In a few days, now, when driven away from the theatre of war, and silenced by the sacrifice of millions of treasure and hundreds of thousands of lives, they will be as silent as the grave, and when the bill is passed by the Senate, and held in the House of Delegates by Union members of the Legislature and citizens, to adopt a pliant for the ensuing campaign,

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The Veto Sustained.

An immense Union meeting was held at the Cooper Institute, New York, on the evening of the 22d inst. Hon. Francis E. Cutting presided, assisted by a large number of the most prominent citizens as Vice Presidents. Dader Field, Esq., Mr. Ward, Postmaster General Dennison, Hon. Henry J. Raymond, Hon. D. S. Dickinson, George Odyke, Esq., and others, addressed the meeting. An address to the people of New York, and resolutions were adopted.

The address is to the effect that the first obligation of the people is the defense of their country. What the country demands is the defense of its institutions. The conflict of power which led to armament, and to the Civil War, is now over.
